As a non-profit organisation, run solely by volunteers, Cotswolds Radio aims to connect with the diverse local community, through a mix of local news, engaging discussion, and a variety of music related shows, that reflect the culture of the region. As a community-driven station, Cotswolds Radio is proud to provide a platform for local voices, promoting local events and initiatives.

Annabelle Belcher, Cotswolds Radio, commented, "This broadcast is a celebration of our vibrant community and our dedicated team of volunteers. We are delighted that Paul Johnson and Jamie Sanderson, two of our DJ's here at the station, decided to take on the marathon broadcast again this year to raise some much-needed funds for local charity, Kate's Home Nursing. Kate's provide incredible nursing care for people in their own homes through the last stages of their lives, whilst offering much needed support to their families.. We invite everyone to tune in, participate, bid and donate, to make this event a memorable experience."

Listeners can tune into Cotswolds Radio by downloading the app, listen on Alexa or stream the broadcast live at www.cotswoldsradio.com. The station will be active on social media throughout the event, sharing updates and content via:
