

Press Release: "I'm A Lad From Bury" by The Musicmen

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Bury, United Kingdom - July 13, 2023 - Brooksy, also known as David Brooks now 70, a proud lad from Bury, England, and now a resident of Australia for over four decades, has released a heartfelt song titled "I'm A Lad From Bury" in collaboration with The Musicmen. The track, written and produced by Trevor Carter at Empire Records in Melbourne, Australia, captures Brooksy's deep connection to his hometown and his beloved Bury FC.

Brooksy's journey began with his soccer career, starting at Bury FC, where he had the honour of playing against legendary footballer Sir Bobby Charlton at Gigg Lane. Although he did not reach the highest level in professional soccer, Brooksy persevered, and a turning point presented itself when he was offered a three-year contract to play for Ringwood City in Australia. Since then, Australia has become his home, but his heart has never left Bury.

The Musicmen, led by Brooksy, gained significant attention across Australian television screens after a captivating performance on Hey Hey It's Saturday's Red Faces. Their talent further shone through in a memorable TV Toheey's Beer advertisement and the release of a top 20 album titled "What Can You Play" under Mushroom Records which lead to performing at the Ashes Lunch break on The MCG & SCG the appearing at The Australian Music Awards with Will Smith, Terence Trent Derby & Kim Wilde!

The recently released song, "I'm A Lad From Bury," embodies Brooksy's deep affection for his hometown. It serves as a testament to his unwavering love for Bury and his hopes for the resurgence of Bury FC, with the aspiration of seeing them return to the football league someday.

Brooksy expressed his sentiment, saying, "You Can Take The Lad Out Of Bury But Can't Take Bury Out Of The Lad!" Despite residing in Australia for 42 years, Brooksy has made it a tradition to return to Bury each year, highlighting the enduring connection he holds with his roots.

"I'm A Lad From Bury" by The Musicmen is now available for streaming on Spotify and for purchase on iTunes, allowing listeners to experience the heartfelt tribute to Bury and its football culture.
