

Immediate Release

Debbie Harry to model in the VIN + OMI fashion show at the Andaz London to highlight a global issue on the 11th September at 9.30pm

VIN + OMI will be showing their Spring Summer 18 collection together with friend and muse Debbie Harry from Blondie, highlighting a global issue of plastic waste and what can be done with recycled ocean and river collected plastic.

More plastic has been produced in the last ten years than the last century. An issue that affects wildlife and our environment. VIN + OMI (who have received an award by the National Endowment for Science and Technology Award) have been creating ways to work with sustainable materials in fashion and this season they are creating the collection mainly with rPET fabrics which have been made from recycled plastic bottles.

Debbie is a long time supporter of Riverkeeper in New York, an organisation dedicated to cleaning up the Hudson River.

"Plastic is polluting our oceans and rivers . Recycling it into fun fashion helps chip away at global problem " Debbie Harry

Debbie who will be modelling in the show, is a frequent wearer of VIN + OMI on and off stage and is currently wearing VIN + OMI outfits on the current Blondie "Pollinator" tour and the "Rage and Rapture tour "

"Why I am walking in the VIN + OMI show...?....They believe, like I do, that we should STOP FUCKING THE PLANET ' Debbie Harry

This will be the first time the international music icon has walked in a UK catwalk show. She will be joined by Blondie band member Matt Katz - Bohem

" VIN + OMI are passionate about campaigning for the use of textiles made from recycled plastic, especially from ocean salvage.

It is a sad fact that plastic bottles, for example, can take hundreds of years to biodegrade, other types of plastic even longer. So recycling what won't go away, in the right way, is essential. We hope this show will encourage more designers worldwide to explore their local textile options and turn discarded plastic into clothing.

The connections worldwide need to be strengthened between the recycling channels and textile production. Designer demand can help strengthen this pathway. We want this show to highlight how innovative eco fabrics can be fun, high fashion and wearable. It's great to have Debbie supporting us to raise awareness of how fashion can take responsibility. " VIN + OMI

The designers are following current trends to show outside of the regular London Fashion Week venues and circuit and returning to London's East End.

" Designers are experimenting more with venues outside of the typical London Fashion Week circuit and timings. It's great working the relaxed, creative Andaz London team and returning to the buzz East London has. " VIN + OMI

"With the Andaz London being an East London institution, we couldn't think of anything more perfect than hosting the Vin & Omi collection, bringing fashion back into the heart of the City, and celebrating the brand's official return to the area where they first began!

We are always looking to champion the area's creativity and diversity, With Vin & Omi's new collection tapping into key ethical issues around the environment and sustainability, and with guest star Debbie Harry taking centre stage, we are excited to support such a worthy cause."
