GREATER LINCOLNSHIRE'S HEALTH AND CARE SECTOR EMPLOYS OVER 58,000 PEOPLE

Careers within the medical and care sector are hugely varied. Caring for people requires the right set of skills and attitudes, and the opportunities to progress and specialise within the sector is growing very rapidly. Demand for technically complex healthcare is increasing, and combined with an ageing population, there are significant opportunities in this industry for research and to develop new technologies. The Joseph Banks Laboratories at the University of Lincoln provides world class research facilities for the schools of pharmacy and chemistry, and there are an increasing number of learning opportunities within its nursing and medical departments.
