

Ruspolymet to Open Representative Office in Germany

Ruspolymet, Russia's leading metallurgical and metal-working enterprise located in Kulebaky, the Nizhny Novgorod Region, will open its representative office in Düsseldorf (Germany) in July. The new office will help promote Ruspolymet's products (ingots, forgings, rings and discs for aircraft engines, and power and general machinery) in foreign markets and will also increase export delivery volumes in accordance with goals set by corporate management.

Maxim Klochay, General Manager, Ruspolymet, commented on this new development: "The performed modernization lets us establish unique production and provide up-to-date equipment with a complete technological cycle, from melting special steel and alloys to manufacturing finished product. It helps us to manufacture premium quality products and to expand the product range. This should increase sales volumes and, in particular, export deliveries, by 22% in 2017 (compared with 2016), and we then plan to reach a 35% level of the total output. The German representative office gives us leverage, putting us in closer proximity to our customers."
