

27-Year Frameless Glass Veteran Launches Lumelle Glass Ltd Following Strategic Change

Tuesday 12 May, 2026

LONDON, UK — Chris Parry, a specialist with nearly three decades of experience in high-end frameless glass design, has announced the first-year success of his new venture, Lumelle Glass Ltd. The milestone follows a deliberate and challenging restructuring of his business operations, moving away from traditional installation to a specialist "supply-only" model. The Reality of the 2024 Transition

The launch of Lumelle Glass Ltd in June 2025 was born out of a time of considerable industry upheaval. In early 2024, Parry's previous installation-focused firms in London and Bristol were hit by the UK's widespread labour and logistics crisis. While the companies entered liquidation, Parry took the rare step of fulfilling all outstanding customer work-in-progress (WIP) through his new entity. This pledge to his clients came at a heavy personal cost. Parry personally absorbed the financial impact, reinvesting his own savings and assets—including his family home—to ensure staff were paid and no customer was left out of pocket. This resulted in a personal bankruptcy that Parry describes as a necessary price to preserve a 27-year reputation in the trade. Design-Led Supply: A Return to the Drawing Board Lumelle Glass Ltd denotes a return to Parry's core expertise: the complex engineering of frameless glass. Unlike standard glazing, frameless structures require meticulous accuracy at the design stage. By switching to a "supply-only" model, Parry has removed the high-risk variables of on-site labour that plagued the industry in recent years. "After 27 years in frameless design, I've learned that the success of a project is decided long before a piece of glass arrives on site," Parry says. "Installation is often where the most risk lies for a business, but the value is in the design. Lumelle is about providing the technical blueprints and the architectural-grade glass that other suppliers simply aren't equipped to handle." Proving the Model

Now legally discharged and operating a debt-free business, Parry has led Lumelle to a 4.6-star satisfaction rating within its first 12 months. The success of the model suggests that technical knowledge and transparency are the most valuable assets in the luxury renovation market. For Parry, Lumelle is beyond a fresh start, but a leaner, more resilient way to deliver 27 years of specialised knowledge. About Lumelle Glass Ltd
