Here, AJG Direct has outlined the 5 traits that they believe are necessary for success as an entrepreneur:

Ability to take risks

Entrepreneurs need to be able to take a risk. There is a big difference between low risk and high risk, and between gambling and medium risk, outlines AJG Direct. The firm is confident that entrepreneurs must have the ability to take risks, pushing the bar higher each time.

Learn from experience and make course corrections

Entrepreneurs fail if they are not agile and mobile, reveals AJG Direct. The firm is confident that in order to be a success, an entrepreneur must recognise mistakes and make quick course corrections.

Drive businesses with purpose, not profit

Profit should be the outcome and purpose should be the driving force, shares AJG Direct. The first thing an entrepreneur must keep in mind when starting a business is the purpose. Focusing on profit leads to cutting corners which often results in bad decisions, bad service and a short-term business mindset.

Resilience

Entrepreneurs have to be able to bounce back or stick it out in adversity, highlights AJG Direct. The firm highlights how entrepreneur Steve Jobs is a perfect example of this. Jobs was thrown out of his own company at the age of 30 but bounced back to make a second company equally as big, and gets called back to his old company at the age of 52.

Celebrate failures as much as successes

Being able to demonstrate passion and engage employees by celebrating success is crucial for entrepreneurs. However, entrepreneurs must also heed the lessons of failure, outlines AJG Direct.
