

86% Want UK Employers To Provide COVID-19 Testing

Wednesday 3 June, 2020

How Can They Do This? - COVID-19 Rapid Tests for £24 in the UK

In-workplace testing provides a greater level of comfort to employees. In a UK-based survey completed in June 2020 of 500 respondents, it was found that 86% of employees want their employer to provide testing. The survey also found that 70% of employees are not comfortable with going back to work at the moment. AntibodyChecks testing provides a solution to this and helps reassure employees that their health and safety is a top priority for their employer.

The survey also found only 7% of respondents had been tested in the past, but 26% believe they have already had COVID-19. With public testing not widespread enough, it is difficult for employers to make decisions when it comes to people. Decision based on more data, calculated risk assessment on safeguards and structured testing will help increase the comfort of employees to return to the workplace and help employers make better decisions. The survey found that 54% would be more comfortable returning to the office, if antibody testing is provided.

With lockdown restrictions relaxing in the UK and more businesses and corporations opening up, AntibodyChecks provide a solution to this with inexpensive COVID-19 antibody tests, from £24 per test, that can be performed onsite with results delivered in 15 minutes.

This gives businesses data to understand what guidelines they need to put in place for distancing measures, how they phase the workforce back into the office or workplace and help understand the need for further COVID-19 laboratory testing. It is a powerful, less expensive solution to give businesses and corporations the ability to make informed decisions on their next steps to reduce the transmission of COVID-19.

Founder of AntibodyChecks, Mayur Vohra, said:

“It is clear that without data, decisions cannot be made. We’ve seen this throughout lockdown. However, laboratory testing from the get-go can be expensive and time-consuming.
