According to a study conducted by Sensamax, men who have tried the product have restored their sexual confidence

A recent study conducted amongst British Sensamax consumers, a natural prescription free enhancement pill, assures that 89% of them have solved their sexual dysfunctions. Sensamax is available in the UK, several other European countries and the US as well. More than 500.000 people worldwide have tried it and are satisfied with the results.

This natural sexual booster not only helps to fight erectile dysfunction but also increases libido and sexual confidence. “I'm 35 years old and already suffering from erection problems, because I'm such a nervous guy," tells us one of the participants, who wishes to remain incognito. “I was an awkward looking teenager and never had any confidence, especially when it came to girls. I'm so glad that I discovered Sensamax- just one pill makes me feel so much more confident," he continues. As a matter of fact, the study has shown that people often use these natural male enhancement pills not only to fight erection problems, but also to prevent premature ejaculation and to improve their overall sexual performance. Others simply use them to reverse temporary erectile dysfunction which may be caused by alcohol or other recreational drugs.

But how do natural enhancement pills work?
The 100% natural composition of Sensamax stimulates the blood circulation in the body therefore allowing a more intense erection. Ingredients like green tea leaves, maca or grape seed extract allow improved blood supply thus facilitating penile rigidity. "More and more people are choosing to treat their erection problems with more stimulating and safe alternatives," says the head scientist in charge of the Sensamax study. "Besides, the natural composition of Sensamax guarantees no side effects", he adds. Because of its stimulating natural ingredients, even women have started to discover sexual enhancement pills for themselves.
