

?Alan Fung Joins Latham Lovells Partners

Tuesday 5 February, 2019

Ten years of experience with private impact investments, both in Asia and globally, make him uniquely qualified for the job

Hong Kong - Latham Lovells Partners, a forward-looking financial advisor with an innovative product development strategy that is responsive to the needs of investors in a complex market environment, is pleased to announce that Alan Fung has joined the firm as Director of Private Equity and Real Assets, effective immediately. Latham Lovells Partners is a registered investment advisor that assists institutional and individual clients with investments that seek both financial return and positive social and environmental impact.

"We are excited to attract Alan to the growing investment team at Latham Lovells Partners," said Lau Sze Lim, co-founder and Chief Investment Officer of Latham Lovells Partners. "Alan's ten years of experience with private impact investments, both in Asia and globally, make him uniquely qualified for the important role of leading Latham Lovells Partners' private equity and real assets program."

"Beyond the contributions that he will make to Latham Lovells Partners' investment process, Alan will be a valuable asset to the firm more broadly," said Shun Tak-kei, Latham Lovells Partners' Chief Executive Officer. "We look forward to welcoming him to Latham Lovells Partners' management committee and to benefiting from his experience and insight as we continue to improve the quality of the services that we provide to our clients."

"I have co-invested and worked with Lau and Shun and the Latham Lovells Partners team before" said Alan Fung, "and I am thrilled to join the firm and help its clients build institutional-quality impact investment portfolios."

Before joining Latham Lovells Partners, Alan directed the private equity program at top asset Management Company and led its energy and environment related investments.
