

All About Savings Excited to Unveil Brand New Quote Comparison Tool

Monday 22 April, 2013

Despite only being online for less than a year, All About Savings are delighted to announce the inception of a fantastic new tool designed to make it even easier for businesses of all size in the United Kingdom to find quotes. The All About Savings service can help with all aspects of business bills ranging from telecoms and insurance to gas and electricity.

Due to the fact than unlike many comparison services and business utility websites All About Savings' service is totally free of charge – the buzz around the site has been building steadily since mid-2012 and this has culminated in the creation of this new tool. Due to the decades of experience that the All About Saving team possess, they have been able to help thousands of companies from around the country lower their utility bills. As such, this tool may well come as music to the ears of anyone looking to save money for their business this year.

The All About Savings system is very simple, they use their aforementioned expertise and skill to find the most appropriate energy, insurance or telecoms supplier for each specific business. They then assess how long a company has with their current provider and take care of all the necessary paperwork when overseeing a smooth switch to a cheaper supplier. All this is taken care of at no additional cost to the business in question.

According to James Swailes, who has reaped the benefits from using the All About Savings system in the past think that the All About Savings service has come at the ideal time.

"With the UK coming out of the recession a lot more slowly than people envisaged, the All About Savings website has come at an ideal time. As any business owner will know only too well, a key part of success is driving down costs. After giving the team a quick call, I am now paying far less out on a monthly basis which has increased my profit margins significantly. This has allowed me to employ more staff and therefore boost my customer service." Swailes stated.

When it comes to business energy, the All About Savings panel have made a great name for themselves through their negotiation skills with the UK's big six suppliers. This results in some great rates for businesses across the nation.

"We are really excited about this new tool as we believe that it will help us to assist even more businesses across the country to lower their energy bills. As the summer months approach and energy bills may become far less expensive, there may never have been a better time for businesses to make that change" said Jo Brookes, Marketing Manager for All About Savings.
