Alpha Gamma Solutions have shared their Top 10 Traits of a Successful Leader:

Confidence – Showing assertiveness and a clear vision of one's objectives will facilitate others to trust and follow a leader.

Transparency – Trust plays a crucial role in building lasting relationships with employees, external partners and the consumers themselves. Be open, present and consistent.

Integrity – A good leader will claim accountability or responsibility when someone in the company trips up, and will take steps to improve things.

Inspiration – Leaders should be driven, give brilliant advice and be fuelled by an inner drive and self-belief. If they possess these qualities they are more likely to motivate others.

Passion – To be successful, a person must obsess and be consumed by a passion to succeed. Lead the way, and others will follow suit.

Decisiveness – In business, decisions can be difficult. Being fiercely sharp and strong when making decisions on behalf of a business shows great leadership. Hesitance and a tendency to delay decisions may backfire with a team.

Empowerment – Employees who are happier and feel better equipped in their role will always try their best in any situation. Leaders must find each person's capabilities and strengths and allocate tasks accordingly.

Positivity – Leaders who create a culture of optimism by appearing positive will improve morale within their team.

Persistence – All things take time to develop, and a leader must demonstrate persistence no matter what. Take an example like Steve Jobs; a leader must follow through with their vision no matter what.

Insightfulness – A leader needs to be innovating and inspiring to others around them. Insightful leaders are able to prove attention is being paid where it matters.

Communication – This is one of the must haves for any good leader. Even if an individual lacks in other areas, there will be no structure or organisation where there is no communication. Being able to effectively communicate ideas to others is a prime characteristic of any good leader. People need to be aware of the expectations held of them, but people also need to feel like they can tell a leader their thoughts and ideas or criticisms.
