AMRADNET UK now in the UK!

Tuesday 14 July, 2026

The UK does not need another teleradiology vendor. It needs diagnostic capacity partners who can help NHS Trusts and hospitals move patients from scan to answer faster.

AMRADNET is launching in the UK with a different radiology offering that goes beyond teleradiology reporting and encompasses scanning, interventional support, and CDC partnership pathways to help reduce delays and deliver better outcomes.

With 22 years of U.S. and international radiology experience, the company has supported care across a wide range of clinical settings, including hospitals, imaging centres, urgent care, nursing and rehabilitation facilities, outpatient practices, and complex care environments. Having completed several million studies across multiple modalities and exam types, it understands the complexity, urgency, and operational discipline required to deliver radiology at scale.

As AMRADNET expands into the UK, it combines international capability with a growing network of UK-based, NHS experienced radiologists. This integrated model supports Trusts in improving reporting turnaround times, reducing pressure on local teams, and enhancing patient care.

The company continues to invest in our people, clinical expertise, operational processes, technology platforms, interventional capabilities, and CDC partnerships to improve access, increase efficiency, strengthen quality, and deliver better outcomes for patients and healthcare providers.

“Our aim is to deliver timely radiology expertise that strengthens NHS care and supports better outcomes for patients,” said Jon Priddle, UK Managing Director, AMRADNET UK. “Combining the vast experience, we have both in the UK and globally, we believe we can make a real difference to the NHS and to patients.”

AMRADNET UK operates under a radiologist led clinical governance framework to ensure safety, accuracy, and accountability across all reporting. Reliable turnaround times are central to the company’s commitment to quality and efficiency, supporting timely clinical decisions and smoother patient flow across NHS care settings.

By aligning people, process, technology, and clinical expertise, we help accelerate decision-making, reduce delays, improve efficiency, and support a higher standard of care.

AMRADNET UK is now welcoming partnership enquiries from NHS Trusts and hospitals nationwide.
