

Bipolar UK launches new fundraising campaign, I Am/I Have

Monday 21 August, 2017

Bipolar UK will challenges you to examine your preconceptions of individuals affected by bipolar with the launch of their new I Am/I Have campaign.

The I Am/I Have campaign asks the fundamental question of what makes a person who they are. The charity appeal will introduce you to a range of people affected by bipolar, highlighting the fact that bipolar affects a huge number of people in the UK but it doesn't have to define them.

Bipolar is a severe, life-long mental illness characterised by significant mood swings from manic highs to suicidal depression. It can have a devastating impact on individuals' lives and the lives of families, friends and carers. We believe that bipolar can be managed with the right support for each person.

Stigma and discrimination means people are often identified solely by their diagnosis, instead of the countless characteristics that make us who we are.

Everybody's experience of bipolar is unique so Bipolar UK offers a range of services to provide people with the support they need, when they need it. Over one million of us in the UK have bipolar with thousands loved ones and carers also impacted by the illness.

Bipolar UK is the only national charity dedicated to supporting individuals affected by bipolar but we're struggling to meet demand for our services. Last year we supported 80,000 people and this number is rising. That's why we're calling on the public to get behind people affected by bipolar by making a donation to the I Am/I Have campaign.

Emily Maguire, singer-songwriter and Bipolar UK supporter, said:

"Sometimes when I'm not well it feels like my whole life is dominated by that diagnosis. But my friends and family know that when I am well I am just like any other person who is busy, motivated, and generally OK. I'm a singer, a songwriter, a musician, a friend. I have bipolar. I am not an illness, I am a human being."

Andrew Langdon, Chief Executive at Bipolar UK, said:

"As highlighted by Emily's comments, it is vital we recognise each person as who they are and not just their diagnosis. Bipolar is often unduly stigmatised and so to reduce the stigma and the discrimination that many people with bipolar face, we must regard bipolar as something they have but doesn't define them."

Davinia Batley, Fundraising Manager at Bipolar UK, said:

"We're inviting people to support the person behind the diagnosis by donating to Bipolar UK. When you choose to make a gift to Bipolar UK, you choose to join a growing number of people who believe that bipolar should no longer be an invisible illness."
