

Brand Me Marketing Expand into the Bristol Market

Wednesday 30 April, 2014

It has long been understood that Cardiff is an excellent place in which to base a business. The transport links, business resources and thriving business community all make for an inspiring place in which to work. Brand Me Marketing saw Cardiff as the obvious choice when setting up their headquarters. Now, as the business is growing and succeeding, their Managing Director Sophie Munslow has decided that it is time to cast their net further afield. For this reason, she is shortly due to open up an office in Bristol and she is very excited about the new opportunities that this will bring.

She says, 'Our office in Cardiff has proved to be extremely successful and I am very heartened by the way in which we are gaining market share. I am ambitious for the future of Brand Me Marketing and so I took the decision to branch out and open up an office in Bristol too. Bristol is a hub of activity when it comes to business and I am very much looking forward to making waves in the local business scene.' Direct marketing is always in high demand as it offers businesses the potential to get face to face with potential new customers. Results-driven, direct marketing is the best way to boost your customer base and increase profits. Sophie Munslow and her office are leading their field when it comes to direct marketing and it's easy to see why when you look at their skills, knowledge and experience within the sector.

Bristol has always been known to be a financially successful city and it has long been associated with industry and commerce. Famous for its aeronautics industry as well as car manufacturing, tobacco and coal mining, the 21st century has seen a rise in the number of offices and businesses setting up home there. With a GVA of £11.7bn and a comparatively low employment rate of 5.9%, Bristol is one of the most commercially successful cities in England and it's no surprise that business is booming. Not only is it a thriving business hub but it is also a major tourist attraction thanks to the wealth of things to see and do there.

Sophie Munslow and her office plan to open their doors in Bristol in the next couple of weeks and they are looking forward to making new connections and forging new relationships with the business community.
