Bunch Acquires Monadd to Transform Automated Address and Service Management for Renters Across the UK

Tuesday 6 January, 2026

The acquisition brings Monadd's trusted address-update and service-notification technology into the Bunch platform, strengthening the end-to-end automation of household administration.

LONDON, 6 January 2026 — Bunch, the UK's leading bill management platform for renters, today announced its acquisition of Monadd, the address-management infrastructure used to automatically update providers, subscriptions, and services when people move home.

Bunch now reaches more than one in three renters in the UK through exclusive distribution partnerships and deep integrations across the country's major proptech platforms. The company has experienced 400% growth over the past eight months, driven by partnership expansion across the UK's proptech ecosystem and increased demand for automated household management solutions

"Monadd is one of the most elegant and reliable systems for managing address-linked services, and combining it with Bunch allows us to remove even more friction from people's lives," said Elliott Herrod-Taylor, Founder & CEO of Bunch. "Household admin should run effortlessly in the background, and this acquisition moves us significantly closer to that reality."

Monadd's technology, trusted by over 8,000 households, enables renters to update multiple suppliers at once, streamline service transfers, prevent administrative gaps, and maintain accurate records across essential providers. These capabilities will be woven directly into the Bunch platform, and its forthcoming AI assistant designed to discover bills, analyse spend, automate supplier interactions, and continuously save users time and money.

"Monadd was built to simplify one of the most frustrating moments in modern life: keeping your services up to date when your circumstances change," said Jessica Mendoza, Founder & CEO of Monadd. "By joining Bunch, we can bring that simplicity to a far wider audience and become part of a seamless experience for households across the UK."

The acquisition strengthens Bunch's position as a leader in household administration. With Monadd joining the platform, Bunch expands from solving move-home complexity into supporting continuous, year-round household management. This positions Bunch to serve not just renters moving house, but any individual looking to simplify bills, subscriptions, and supplier interactions.

"This is Bunch's first acquisition, and it accelerates our mission to make managing your bills effortless, intelligent, and automated," said Herrod-Taylor. "Together, we're building the operating system for modern household management."
