

Can Direct Marketing Really Increase Your Chances of Success? Iconic Strategies Explain

Wednesday 5 March, 2014

Media:

Managing director Simon Reynolds at Iconic Strategies insists customers want consistent, relevant communication and direct marketing is able to meet these demands with the added bonus of a personal touch.

Iconic Strategies reviews the benefits of direct marketing, following reports that customers demand personalised marketing methods from retailers. According to the O2's 'The Rise of Me-tail' study, 56 percent of consumers said that they would be more inclined to use a retailer on the sole basis of a personalised customer's experience. Cheryl Calverley, the marketing manager at masterbrand Birds Eye claimed that 'consumers now expect an end-to-end, personalised conversation and experience with a brand. Marketers that fail to embrace this and continue with a one-size-fits-all creative and communication strategy will simply not be part of the conversation' (www.marketingweek.co.uk).

With personalised marketing becoming such a huge demand from customers, Iconic Strategies express the two key areas marketers must hit with marketing personalisation:

1. Customers demand relevance

According to a recent Forrester Mobile report, customers demand relevant attention which has been customised to their needs, rather than marketing channels. Iconic Strategies stress that the importance of giving customers exactly what they want as customers are more inclined to trust businesses that exceed their expectations (dmnews.com).

2. Personalisation guarantees ROI

Personalised marketing not only benefits consumers, but marketers will also witness a boost in ROI from this method. Iconic Strategies express the importance of ROI and have always guaranteed their clients a high ROI from using direct marketing. According to EConsultancy, it was reported that 68 percent of markets saw a boost to their marketing ROI and 74 percent saw an increase in their customer engagement (dmnews.com).
