Caroline Castigliano appointed by Marie Claire as Royal Expert in the lead up to the wedding of Princess Eugenie to Jack Brooksbank

Friday 5 October, 2018

British designer Caroline Castigliano, the connoisseur of handcrafted luxury bridal wear has been appointed as marieclair.com's royal expert for the upcoming luxury bridal wear between Princess Eugenie and Jack Brooksbank on 12th October.

This is a role she is reprising having acted as a correspondent for the wedding of Prince William to Kate Middleton commenting for TV , radio and media world wide and as marieclaire.com's royal expert earlier this year for the Royal wedding between Prince Harry and Meghan Markle in May.

Princess Eugenie is yet to release details about her wedding gown, this is Castigliano's predictions:

"I think she will go with a slightly 50's feel. Beautiful soft flowing full skirt and fitted bodice, I expect to see some lace on the gown, it will be fluid in style and glamourous.

Known for her understated classic designs with a glamorous but effortless feel, Castigliano has dressed some of the world's most stylish women for their weddings and red carpet events.
