26 July 2019 A speaker from the British Tinnitus Association (BTA) will be talking at the next meeting of the Sheffield tinnitus support group. The meeting will take place 2:00pm – 4:00pm Thursday 15 August, at the Hallamshire Hospital Medical School, B Floor, Glossop Road, Sheffield S10 2JF..

The group, organised by the audiology department at the Hallamshire Hospital enables people with tinnitus to meet others with the condition, hear useful tips on coping methods, find out what help is available and hear about the latest research.

Patrick Cavan from the BTA will be discussing how to manage tinnitus, and talking about the work the BTA does to support those who experience the condition.

Patrick comments: "I look forward to coming and speaking with the support group. Being among people who have tinnitus, listening to their experiences and how they manage it, can be inspirational. I feel I learn something every time I attend a group meeting. It is amazing seeing the difference it makes to people, especially those who have recently been diagnosed."

Tinnitus is defined as the experience of sounds with no external source, most commonly ringing or buzzing, but sometimes experienced as whooshing, clicking or even music. Around one in eight people have persistent tinnitus. Many people aren't troubled by sounds they hear, but for around 10%, the condition has a significant impact on their quality of life, often linked to stress, anxiety or sometimes depression.

Patrick adds: "Tinnitus can be an isolating condition, and we're keen to spread the word that there are management techniques which can help a person lead the best life they can, and to reduce the burden of living with this condition."
