

Clutch Releases New Report on Top Enterprise Software Developers in the United Kingdom

Friday 11 December, 2015

This report identifies eight development firms with an outstanding record of delivering bespoke enterprise solutions.

WASHINGTON, December 11, 2015 - Today Clutch published a new report on 2015 Top UK Enterprise Software Development Firms. The research leverages the proprietary Leaders Matrix methodology, which maps each firm's focus on enterprise software and web development against their ability to deliver on client expectations.

The following eight companies were inducted into the 2015 Top Enterprise Software Development Firms UK Leaders Matrix:

Ittransition, Human Made, Intellectsoft, DCSL Software, Bright Interactive, BJSS, Made Tech, and thoughtbot.

Analysts performed an in-depth evaluation of development firms in the United Kingdom that specialize in enterprise solutions. The highlighted vendors in this report were chosen after a thorough assessment of more than a dozen quantitative and qualitative elements, including company experience, industry recognition, technical certifications, market presence and positive client reviews.

"Developing an enterprise solution requires a huge investment of time and resources and yet there is no guarantee of success," explained Joshua Margolin, Senior Analyst at Clutch. "That's why it's crucial that organizations find partners that can perform exceptionally well under pressure and have a wealth of experience to draw from. The companies showcased in this report fit that bill and come highly recommended."

Clutch's effort to identify top UK enterprise software developers remains ongoing, and the company encourages vendors with a demonstrated record of outstanding client service and satisfaction to apply for inclusion in future research.
