Cornelius Vanderbilt Capital Management Proudly Announces Financing Availability For Renewable Energy

Monday 15 February, 2021

12 th February 2021, Cornelius Vanderbilt Capital Management proudly announces financing availability for renewable energy with a $100Mil USD investment into wind and solar projects across North America.

The scheme that Politicians across North America have backed will see the distribution of funds to renewable energy companies thriving in the sector.

Due to the ongoing Coronavirus Pandemic funding for the renewable energy sector has fallen as much as 30%, Cornelius Vanderbilt Capital Management hopes to feel this void with our much-needed financing.

Head of Global Sales & Underwriting, Jack Thompson, MBA, CPA says "Renewable energy has a wide range of benefits for Environmental and industrial purposes such as generating energy that produces no greenhouse gas emissions from fossil fuels and reduces some types of air pollution. We take this great opportunity to invest in a better industrial and environmentally friendly option of producing energy."

Mortimer Amadeus Lindemann, MBA from the Loan Services Team at Cornelius Vanderbilt Capital Management, said "We strive to create a better planet and a better future for our future generations. Cornelius Vanderbilt Capital Management cares deeply about the effect its partners have on the world through the use of fossil fuels and are proudly announcing the availability of $100M (USD) in renewable energy projects across North America."
