Thursday 23 May, 2019

Typerium is a platform and cryptocurrency that aims to make design and content creation simple. It will also feature its own integrated marketplace, social media network and copyright protection. As one of the latest emerging blockchain projects, it just launched on P2PB2B, which is the 25th biggest exchange in the world according to CoinMarketCap.

The move will give Typerium and its TYPE token greater exposure, giving backers more options to support and invest in the project. It will also allow P2PB2B to broaden its offering, giving users access to another exciting platform and coin.

Typerium is a multi-layered platform, centered around its intuitive creative design software which will make it easy to develop professional-quality work. The app will suggest font pairings, filters, coloring and more graphic design elements, helping to turn the mundane into the extraordinary.

Typerium is one of the few companies within the cryptocurrency space who have a real-world use case for blockchain technology. Typerium's blockchain-based structure will provide copyright protection to help keep the intellectual property of their users content safe. Using smart contracts on the blockchain, users will then be able to prove ownership of their own creative content. Creations can then be bought, sold and licensed, using TYPE tokens on the marketplace. There will also be a built in social media network which lets people share their work, comment and build a positive community.

Sinces its launch, Typerium has successfully listed on LATOKEN, CoinExchange, Trade Satoshi, and IDEX. TYPE can also be used with SWFT Pay.

P2PB2B is one of the most reputable cryptocurrency exchanges in the world. It has advanced features and offers a high level of performance, with up to 10,000 trades per second and 1,000,000 TCP connections.

The exchange takes its users' security seriously, storing 95% of its currency in cold wallets and deploying a web application firewall that helps to defend against hackers.

The UK based Blockchain company also appears to be on track with growth plans having recently appointed Sindy Strife as Creative Lead to help steer UX/UI for the platform which is anticipated to launch in 2020.
