Critical Power Supplies Ltd is 10 Years Old

Monday 25 November, 2019

London, UK - November 25, 2019 - The UK's leading independent, multi-brand supplier of power supplies and solutions for standby power is celebrating its 10th birthday this month.

Critical Power Supplies Ltd provides the most efficient and environmentally friendly UPSs and generator systems on the market. Since businesses and end-users now require 24/7 power continuity, no matter what, and expect sustainability to be taken into account with the products and services they choose, Critical Power Supplies Ltd is set to see their success soar.

With offices in Oxfordshire and London, Critical Power Supplies Ltd takes care of secure power needs for businesses in all industries, including transport, networking and telecoms, industrial, medical, and marine environments. Their experience, services, and products ensure power continuity, even when the unexpected occurs, such as spikes, sags, or complete power outages.

Adhering to all relevant laws and regulations to meet safety standards, the company even offers a service to safely remove old UPS systems and dispose of or recycle components in line with relevant environmental standards.

"At Critical Power Supplies, we are extremely conscious of the environment in which we work and live," stresses Jason Koffler, Managing Director of Critical Power Supplies Ltd. "We perform all our work tasks with future generations in mind, always considering how what we do today will impact tomorrow. For example, our products are the most energy-efficient on the market today to minimise their environmental impact. We are concerned with working practices that conserve resources and, wherever we can, we use environmentally compatible materials."

Having worked for leading industry providers such as MGE UPS Systems and EATON Corporation, Koffler benefits from nearly three decades of experience in the power supply industry.

Critical Power Supplies Ltd's clients include hospitals, data centres, financial institutions, manufacturing companies, and other organisations for whom it is vital that power and data are never compromised. Since they are manufacturer independent, they are able to advise clients on the best solution for them without ties to any suppliers.

Customer service is a top priority for Critical Power Supplies Ltd. Their extensive service network provides 24/7 support and monitoring, and they offer next day delivery. The company stands out from their competitors in that they encourage an environment where employees can easily connect, interact, and exchange thoughts and ideas. As a result, staff are ideally placed to better assist customers and develop strategies to improve products, services, and customer outcomes. Critical Power Supplies Ltd is ISO 45001 and ISO 14001 registered and committed to keeping employees safe and healthy at work.

As well as being everything a company or an individual needs to support their uninterruptible power supply (UPS), Critical Power
