CRO Cyber Rights Organization offers legal and technical help to cyber crime victims: 'We are the youngest and strongest team of experts in Europe'

Tuesday 3 January, 2023

Based in The Hague, Netherlands, CRO Cyber Rights Organization provides legal and technical assistance to victims experiencing online gender-based violence, such as non-consensual dissemination of intimate images, doxing, sextortion, but also cyberstalking, digital identity violation, violation of GDPR, financial scams and online human traf?cking. But internally, there is also advocacy, data analysis of online violence experienced, sustainable communication, and training for companies and professionals. All to create an authoritative international hotspot in defense of Cyber Rights and to protect Cyber Peace within modern societies. The Organization is led by an international, multicultural team of young researchers, academics, lawyers, and experts in the field of criminal law, information technology, and cyber intelligence specialists.

At its top, the youngest and most dynamic international team in Europe. The director of CRO Annachiara Sarto, 24 years old, trained in United Nations circles; and the Head of Research and Advocacy, Silvia Semenzin, 31 years old, a postdoc fellow at the Complutense University of Madrid and a digital rights activist, have already started the process of European integration of the most impressive international organization specializing in Cyber Rights - the human rights of the web.
Together with Annachiara Sarto and Silvia Semenzin, there are Reputationup's CEOs Andrea Baggio and Juan Ricardo Palacio: determined Master Minds of CRO Cyber Crime Organization, specializing in the technological application of artificial intelligence applied to international cyber security.

"Within our path, we have assisted legally and technically, many victims of cybercrime," explains Director Annachiara Sarto, "devastated girls who have seen their privacy deterred by just a click". But now, things have changed. For the first time in history, an international organization was born through a mixture of forces in the field to protect Cyber Civil Rights and ensure international Cyber Peace between individuals and digital modernity. A joint venture that sees, on the one hand, private companies specializing in the use of specific Artificial Intelligence tools applied to cyber security – it is the case with Reputationup's cyber security expertise - and on the other hand, young activists, researchers, lawyers specialized in international law and criminal law, coming from many different countries and completely devoted to the fight against any kind of cybercrime capable of affecting fundamental human rights online.

"It currently takes more than a hundred days to remove intimate content that violates a person's dignity," explains Master Mind Andrea Baggio, "without adding that the legal framework for intervening in these cases, changes from country to country and takes time to secure the digital life of an individual who survived a cybercrime. With CRO Cyber Rights Organization it will no longer be like this". Silvia Semenzin, Head of Research and Advocacy at CRO Cyber Rights Organization, explains: "Violations of privacy, image-based sexual abuse, online misogyny and platformed hate constantly invest and affect people's daily lives".

Hence the solutions CRO Cyber Rights Organization is able to provide: collect reporting data, process it through CRO's in-house study center, conduct social media surveys, conduct advocacy campaigns, operate strategic litigation, and ensure victims of online violence receive technical, legal assistance and removal of harmful content from the web.
