DocHQ and Avicenna Announce Partnership for Travel Medicine Certificate Service

Wednesday 26 July, 2023

DocHQ, a leading tech-driven wellbeing provider, is pleased to announce a strategic partnership with Avicenna, a renowned healthcare membership organisation, to promote DocHQ's Travel Medicine Certificate service. The partnership aims to provide a seamless travel experience for individuals by ensuring they carry the correct supporting documentation for their medicines when travelling abroad.

Many countries impose strict rules on the type, quantity and strength of prescription and over-the-counter medicines travellers can bring across their borders. DocHQ's Travel Medicine Certificate offers a range of valuable services to people travelling abroad, including checking quantities and strengths of medicines allowed for travel, providing guidance on controlled medicines at various destinations, and offering doctor-approved certificates to allow safe entry with medicines at customs.

DocHQ has launched a partner platform for Avicenna members, providing access to its free medicine checker tool and paid-for Travel Medicine Certificate service. Avicenna will communicate this unique product to its members and enable them to take advantage of the travel services offered by DocHQ.

Both DocHQ and Avicenna are excited about the prospects of the partnership and are committed to providing high-quality services and support to Avicenna members. The collaboration will enable individuals to have a more streamlined and stress-free travel experience while ensuring compliance with travel medicine regulations.

"We are excited to join forces with Avicenna, using our tech to simplify travel with medicines," says DocHQ's CEO Madhur Srivastava. "Our Travel Medicine Certificate services and partner platform aim to make journeys safer and smoother for travellers. It's a step forward in global healthcare mobility."

"Avicenna is very excited to be working with DocHQ and be able to offer this unique product to our members," says Tania Meagher, Head of Membership Services at Avicenna. "Travel Medicine Certificate will enable our members to enhance their current travel offering, whether that be a full clinic or just providing advice to travellers. It has been designed to suit all pharmacy settings and is simple to use."
