Element Events Speak Out about the Role Self Confidence Plays in Success

Thursday 20 July, 2017

Sales and marketing firm Element Events is adamant that self-confidence has a significant impact on an individual's professional direction and success.

Sales and marketing firm, Element Events work with many entry level sales and marketing professionals; the company have recognised that those people who progress at a faster rate and achieve bigger goals tend to be more self-confident and outgoing. Element Events believe that confidence is essential in business and when the right choices are made, confidence can leverage a person's talent even further.

The Basic and Applies Social Psychology journal published a study highlighting the concept of ‘upward self-revision' of our ‘possible selves'. In the study, it was stated that when a person pictures themselves in the future reaching a set goal, then they are more likely to achieve it. Element Events run regular workshops about how it is important to visualise the end goal and have noticed that individuals who succeed in doing so, are the ones who have visualised them the best. People can develop the self-confidence they need over time; in doing so, helping them to secure a bright future.

The competitive sales and marketing industry is ideal for people with a confident personality and goal-orientated outlook; Element Events look to work with talented individuals who go out and make opportunities happen by taking the initiative and who believe they can achieve their goals through hard work and dedication.

Element Events is a marketing agency used by other businesses looking to increase their brand exposure, generate quality leads, acquire new customers and grow their business. Through personalised marketing services, the firm forge business relationships will customers and can evolve with ever-changing consumer demands as they adapt to market trends.

Element Events are helping their workforce to build self-confidence through support, mentorship, and motivation; because even through self-confidence comes from within, the right type of support and regular encouragement will have a lasting impact on a person's career.
