First Ever Gay Youth Summer Camp launches in UK this season!

Tuesday 9 July, 2013

Well known in US concept of Summer Camps has now made its way to UK. Mosaic LGBT Youth Centre launches UK's first summer camp catering exclusively for teenagers (13 – 18) who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual and/or transgender (LGBT) or are questioning their sexual orientation and/or gender.

Young LGBT people age 13 – 19 from across UK will be able to take part in this great experience bringing the best of youth work practice to those who might not have an LGBT youth centre in vicinity. Planned for 18th – 24th of August in Snowdonia, Wales Mosaic Summer Camp will offer participants great combination of workshops and outdoor experiences while meeting like minded peers from across UK.

"LGBT young people can feel isolated, depressed and lonely in what is predominantly heterosexual World around them. Having space where they can belong and be part of something positive is vital in order to build positive self-esteem and resilience"
- Lukasz Konieczka, Mosaic LGBT Youth Centre manager.

Workshops, talks and activities packed programme will offer young people opportunity to revitalise themselves in friendly and fun environment that is supportive, non-judgemental and more importantly diverse and non-heteronormative.

Mosaic LGBT Youth Centre is London based leading provision for young LGBT people age 13-19 offering youth club, mentoring, training and consultancy as well as school delivered anti-homophobia workshops.
