To celebrate the sales and marketing firm's outstanding success this year, Paul wants to join associates from the industry on an R&R trip to the famous Nevada strip and plans to invite First Face Ltd.'s best-performing individual.

Paul admits this trip has been a long time coming, having wanted to offer his staff a chance to win a place on an international trip for the last year or so. The business owner hopes to incentivise his workforce with this once in a lifetime travel opportunity, reporting; "I want to show my team members if you commit to your goals and give it everything you've got, you will be rewarded!! To keep them motivated and working towards their goals I want to show them that this industry offers many amazing benefits and rewards."

Based on performances this year, Paul will be choosing the hardest working brand ambassador from the First Face workforce to take along on the Las Vegas adventure. "The plan is to see the year out with this truly memorable trip," he exclaimed, "I am going to be selecting someone I have seen consistently working to the best of their ability throughout the year."

The First Face Ltd. CEO recognises the importance of travelling and is proud to be in a position which allows him the chance to offer fantastic incentives like this to his driven, ambitious team members.

The Nottingham-based event sales and marketing firm First Face Ltd. works with the sole purpose to grow and expand their business. The environment they have created is very competitive; however, it is also a place to grow and develop personally. Paul Sandhu explains that at First Face Ltd.'s individuals are encouraged to learn and seek the support and guidance they need to become successful in sales and open up and run their own successful business one day.
