London, UK – 4 March 2020:

Dugout, the world's only football club-owned digital content platform, has today announced its 100th club partner – Flamengo, one of Brazil's most successful and popular teams.

Flamengo, who play in the iconic red and black stripe shirts and compete in Brazil's top division, Série A, has signed-up to Dugout to ensure they can continue to expand their fan growth and reach in Latin America and beyond.

With Flamengo's established passionate fan base and the club being recognised as having the largest digital following in the LATAM market, the new partnership will bring high-quality, bespoke digital content direct to supporters through Dugout's growing network of premium publishers globally.

By reaching a century of club partners, Dugout now has a major presence throughout Europe, Asia, Africa and North and South America – with the ability to share exclusive football content directly with millions of fans.

Dugout can also reveal today it has enjoyed its most successful year since launching in 2016 – announcing that 2019 concluded with more than 1.84 billion views across Dugout.com and its network of more than 75 publishers globally.

Dugout has expanded rapidly from 10 founding clubs just over three years ago ? including Barcelona, Real Madrid, Paris Saint-Germain, A.C. Milan, Liverpool, Manchester City, Arsenal, Chelsea, Bayern Munich and Juventus – to now having dedicated channels for clubs in each major football league.

With a global presence across 30 countries, Dugout has a proven track-record in helping clubs increase their levels of fan engagement and international profile. For example, the platform's partnership with Inter Milan (FC Internazionale), increased club video views by 142% – from seven million to 17 million within a three-month period – and enhanced levels of fan engagement and unique visits to the club's own website.
