London's leading Estate Agent Foxtons is thrilled to reveal its further expansion plans by adding five new offices to its current network. Bringing the total number of strategically placed offices throughout London and Greater London to 56, the company is looking to accommodate the ever-increasing demand for property in the areas.

The new Barnes, Walthamstow, West Hampstead, Ruislip and Bromley offices, opening between March and April this year, will celebrate their launch with Foxtons revolutionary 0% commission promotion, offering to sell the area homeowners' properties for free.*. The dedicated sales and lettings teams, who will be running the new offices, will also be welcoming the local residents with fresh-from-the-bakery muffins and festive balloons over each launch weekend.

Nic Budden, Chief Executive Officer, comments: "We are very excited to take the next step in our expansion strategy with the launch of these new offices. With years of experience operating in these areas from our neighbouring offices, we now look forward to offering our unparalleled expertise and knowledge to the local communities".

The opening dates for each office will be announced on Foxtons.co.uk with an open invitation to visit the new offices and take advantage of the exciting promotional activities.
