Wednesday 15 June, 2016

Following the results of Lettings Agency of the Year Awards, London's leading agency Foxtons celebrated taking home two Golds in recognition of their outstanding achievements in Lettings and Web sectors.

Presented in a glamorous event at The Lancaster Hotel, the awards, in association with The Sunday Times and The Times, are held annually with a view to acknowledge and reward the finest of the UK lettings industry. Winners were selected following a rigorous judging process, which included a comprehensive written submission, a telephone interview and a mystery shopping exercise, overseen by The Property Ombudsman Katrine Sporle.

Awarding the ultimate Gold in Best Large Lettings Agency category for the third time running, the judges stated that: "Foxtons is an amazing agency which is head and shoulders above its competitors. As a long-standing player in the lettings market, the continued evolution of the business is impressive", commending the company's core values of innovation and exceptional service. They were equally as impressed with the Foxtons website, praising 'seamless service to all users irrespective of their requirements' it provides.

Ed Phillips, Foxtons Managing Director of Lettings, said: "I am thrilled to win these awards, which I believe demonstrate the highest standard of our company's performance. This fantastic achievement would not have been possible without the incredible work and dedication of everyone across the company, who work together to continuously provide great service and results."
