Get Legally Speaking Podcast - First UK Legal Consumer Podcast Tackling The Issues People Want To Know About

Monday 4 November, 2019

New podcast, Get Legally Speaking launches on 4 November, 2019 on Buzzsprout and can also be found on iTunes and Spotify. It's the first UK legal consumer podcast tackling the issues that people want to know about, by speaking to the best legal minds, asking the questions that the public want answers to and stripping down to the facts. Get Legally Speaking will cover all issues from divorce, to family law, employee rights, customer rights and yes! Brexit rights of EU citizens.

The first episode is focused on divorce, a big topic for many as we go into Christmas; speaking with leading family law barrister Maria Scotland from 5 St Andrews Hill Chambers, London who is joint head of the family team at her chambers. In this divorce episode, Get Legally Speaking will be finding out - how to get the divorce process started; how does it work; do both husband and wife have to agree to a divorce; how much will a divorce cost; and how long will the divorce process take.

Hatti Suvari, legal professional, entrepreneur and founder of Get Legally Speaking says, "I am passionate about making UK law easy for people to understand. I come across people daily, who are confused about the legal matters that are affecting them and don't know where to start. With the Citizens Advice Bureau's around the country over-stretched, and with their outlets on the high-street reduced, I wanted to do something and Get Legally Speaking is the answer."

Every month, Suvari will be covering a specific topic on Get Legally Speaking podcast, chatting with the best legal experts, asking the questions that people need answers to in an easy way and speak.
