It is true what they say that there is little more pleasurable than good quality food. A well made dish with fresh ingredients has the potential to lift our mood and warm our heart. How many times have we come in from a rotten day at work and made ourselves a hearty stew, or indulged in a creamy hot chocolate after a long country walk on a chilly afternoon? Gourmet food giants Forman and Field recognize the importance of well selected, well sourced food from some of the best suppliers from around the UK.

Why Buy British?

A matter of pride - When buying British products, you are contributing to the growth of our economy, keeping small, independent companies in business and ensuring they are being paid a fair wage.

Quality matters - When you buy locally, the timescale from source to shelf is a fraction of that on imported goods, guaranteeing you the freshest, tastiest products whose origins are easily traceable.

Fair is fair - Companies who have outsourced overseas to save cash usually do so at the expense of the working people. Wages are poor, working days long and lacking basic facilities. Health and safety laws regarding animals are rarely adhered to.

Natures way - When we buy British and our food is not being shipped thousands of miles we are significantly reducing our carbon footprint. Not only that, local farming helps our countrysides to flourish, ensuring they will be around for future generations to enjoy.

Of course, we realize that it is not always easy or convenient to seek out locally sourced goods, but Forman and Field makes the whole process easy and hassle free. Visit www.formanandfield.com and you will find a delicious selection of meats, sweets, wines and hampers that can be delivered straight to your door. Bespoke packages can be arranged at reasonable prices for those extra special occasions.

So if you are looking for ethical gourmet food that won't break the bank this Christmas, why not check out The Delicatessen Shop on the Forman and Field site.
