About InMa Ltd: <http://www.inma.org.uk/about-us/>

InMa Ltd believe that for a business to fulfil its growth potential it must utilise the tools available to best understand their market and their consumers. The firm believe that consumer research is crucially important for a business looking to achieve success and attain growth. With markets becoming heavily saturated, it is important to collect consumer research to maintain a business centred on the consumer and their needs. The firm believe this is crucial if a business wants to remain relevant and future-oriented. InMa Ltd know marketers want to grow their business, but they are not always clear on which is the right path to do so. Marketing research can help weigh up and quantify opportunities to prioritise those with the highest revenue potential for the brand. Market research can provide insightful information about a brand's market, product, audience, competition, and more. When using a comprehensive research library, entrepreneurs can make decisions with greater clarity and confidence. By having research to back up marketing decisions, a business can optimise their brand strategy choices and minimise risk for failure.
