

International women's organisation asks members to make 'Time to Talk'

Wednesday 6 February, 2019

Soroptimist International of Great Britain and Ireland (SIGBI) Ltd is asking members to make 'Time to Talk' on 7 February, as part of their campaign to raise awareness of the mental health issues that affect women and girls.

Time to Talk on 7 February, is all about bringing together the right ingredients, to have a conversation about mental health. Whether that's tea, biscuits and close friends or a room full of people challenging mental health stigma, it's just about getting talking.

SIGBI Federation President Sue Williams is using her presidency year to encourage all members to 'Think on It' by incorporating mental health awareness into their club activities. Time to Talk Day fits in really nicely into this theme and is a great opportunity for members to kick starts their campaigns.

Some shocking statistics:

- 29% of women have mental health issues compared with 17% of men.
- 30-60% of women with mental health problems have experienced domestic violence.
- 2/3 of dementia cases are women.
- 1 in 12 young women self-harm.
- 20% of women have PTSD compared to 8 % of men.
- 56% of young trafficked survivors have depression.

"Good mental health is fundamental to thriving in life. It is the essence of who we are and how we experience the world. Yet, compared to physical health, so little is commonly known about mental ill health and how to prevent it. That must change", said Sue Williams, SIGBI President.

President Sue looks forward to working with Clubs to raise awareness of these issues.
