The crypto world is in turmoil again, with rumors that Musk plans to integrate DOGE payment functions into his platforms (such as X or Tesla Ecosystem), which has attracted great attention from the market. Although it has not been officially confirmed, the news has helped DOGE to rise significantly in a short period of time. As Musk's favorite cryptocurrency, if Dogecoin is truly commercialized, its market position may be redefined.

At the same time, Solana (SOL) is also seen as a potential star in the next bull market. With its unmatched throughput and vibrant developer momentum, many analysts believe SOL is on track to break past $300—possibly setting new benchmarks in Layer 1 performance mark in 2025. Currently, its NFT market is active and DeFi is growing rapidly, which has attracted a large number of projects to migrate from Ethereum to the Solana network.

As hot currencies continue to strengthen, the emergence of Area Mining provides investors with a more efficient and lower-threshold way to easily deploy cloud mining of mainstream crypto assets including DOGE, SOL, and ETH, seize the opportunity and enjoy the dividends.

Area Mining is a green cloud mining platform regulated by the FCA, supporting multi-currency automatic mining, zero threshold, low risk, and daily income
