La Bibliothèque appoints new head chef

Wednesday 5 June, 2024

La Bibliothèque is thrilled to announce that they have hired Thomas Lemercier as their new Head Chef.

Born and raised in Strasbourg, Thomas made most of his culinary journey in France before moving to London where he perfected his style and skills at Hide and the Waterhouse Project. His culinary style is a mix of influences, memories and travels. He loves to show his french roots influenced by the creative and international energies in London.

“Cooking is the ultimate expression of love, as I share feelings and emotions on a plate”, says Thomas.

A culinary destination with a difference, La Bibliothèque is not just a place to eat, but an experience.

Where luxury meets East London charm, the restaurant and sake bar offers guests an unforgettable experience.

Conveniently located in East London, between Shoreditch, Dalston and Islington.

As a cherished member of the MAP Family, they stand alongside two remarkable sister venues: MAP Maison in London and MAP Petite Maison in Stockholm.

Infused with an unwavering passion for hospitality, the ethos revolves around creating excellent customer service. The team take immense pride in curating moments of comfort, elegance, and genuine warmth for guests.
