As well as providing the best for our clients, we believe that the long-term success of our firm is running it in an ethical and sustainable way and working with organizations who also share our values. Davis Woolfe are committed to supporting diversity, inclusion and well-being, both within and outside of the team. We therefore support charities we believe in, collaborate only with other like-minded organisations and are committed to creating an inclusive and supportive environment for all to make the biggest impact we can.

'A year ago we set up Davis Woolfe to make a difference; last month was the first year anniversary of Davis Woolfe and it also marks 20 years since I began my career in law. I have always surrounded myself with like-minded people, and as a general rule I have always acted for people who share my values and need my help. From this we shaped our three core values:

1. Being kind to each other;
2. Helping clients by only taking on cases we really believe in and where we can make a positive contribution;
3. Giving back to society generally.

These are unique, challenging times for everyone, but the recent upheaval worldwide has shown us that the spirit to challenge injustice is alive and kicking'.
