

Media industry gets quizzical for youth helpline charity

Thursday 28 May, 2015

160 media industry leaders will test their mental mettle in an interactive quiz event raising money for youth helpline Get Connected on 11th June, hosted at lively London hotspot, Sway in Holborn.

Teams will go head to head to raise as much as possible to fund the growing UK service supporting more than 250,000 vulnerable children and young people each year with issues as far ranging as homelessness, eating disorders, drug abuse and exam stress.

Sponsored by media marketing and digital agencies m/SIX and Rocket Fuel, Get Qu?zzical is the third annual media quiz to bring together VIPs from top creative agencies, news outlets and PR specialists for charity.

Jess Burley, CEO of m/SIX and Get Connected Trustee, says: "Young people, and the services that support them, have never been under more strain than they are today. Poverty in the UK is growing – and in the meantime young people of all demographics are under increasing amounts of pressure to perform well at school and to conform socially, creating a pressure-cooker effect in their immediate environment which has caused suicide rates and instances of self-harm and runaways to surge."

"Our annual quiz is a major fundraiser for Get Connected, bringing together the brightest minds from media and marketing to support the charity in their increasingly necessary work. All our participants should be very proud to be involved."

Andy McNab, UK Managing Director at Rocket Fuel says: "Rocket Fuel support Get Connected because we recognise the great work they do to help young people in need. It's great to see how Jess Burley and her team at m/SIX have supported them over the years and we are delighted to be a sponsor for what I'm sure will be a great event raising lots of money for the charity."

Limited places are still available for teams to join in with this fantastic event. Email ruth.harper@getconnected.org.uk to book.
