The winners of the WAN-IFRA's 2019 Middle Eastern Digital Media Awards were celebrated during a ceremony at the end of the first day of the 14th annual Middle East Conference taking place at Dubai Knowledge Park.

The Middle Eastern Digital Media Awards, presented by WAN-IFRA, the World Association of Newspapers and News Publishers, and supported by Google, recognise publishers in the region that have delivered unique and original digital media projects during the past 12 months, from new approaches to digital subscriptions to powerful native advertising campaigns and more. Over 70 projects from throughout the Middle East were entered in competition this year across ten categories.

The Digital Media Awards are held throughout the year in every major region of the world. They are the most prestigious recognition of best practice innovation in digital publishing. The winners of the Middle Eastern Awards competition now become automatically eligible for the WAN-IFRA's World Digital Media Awards, which recognise the very best digital initiatives globally. The World Awards will be announced at the World News Media Congress to be held in Glasgow, Scotland on 1-3 June.

The 14th WAN-IFRA Digital Media Middle East Conference continues today in Dubai.
