Business Quarter online (26th Feb 2015) reported the announcement by Maserati and the Centre for Entrepreneurs (CFE) that the Midlands represent a number of successful business founders who are giving back to the next generation, which highlights to entrepreneurial strength and spirit of the Midlands-based entrepreneurs. Among a diverse and vibrant array of established entrepreneurs, it included:

Denys Shortt - founder of DCS, the largest distributor of health, beauty and household brands in the UK. For the past seven years, Shortt has supported the entrepreneurship work at the Royal Agricultural University. He has also provided time, energy and contacts to help grow the Enterprise & Entrepreneurship Programme at the university. Shortt also invites budding entrepreneurs to visit his factory and offices in Stratford Upon Avon.

Fay Easton - Director of Telford Enterprise Hub and co-founder of Start Up Hub, based in Telford Shropshire. The Telford Hub offers services such as finance through start up loans, start up boot camps, entrepreneur workshops, Mentor Mastermind Groups and workspace. Between 2011 and 2014 Fay worked with StartUp Britain as the local champion for Shropshire, helping to increase the entrepreneurial activity of the area through growing a culture of taught entrepreneurship. For the past 18 months Easton has been involved with the Young Britain project, co-financed by ERDF & launching over 400 entrepreneurial start ups.
