Sunday is for reflecting – It is crucial for development to assess how the week went regularly. Looking into performance, goals and intentions that were set for the week. Identifying any areas where productivity was lower and time could have been better utilised. Take the time to set goals for the future week to align focus.

Hang out with the people who inspire you – Finding groups of motivated people can spark innovation and boost motivation, it is important to share goals with inner circles so they can work as an accountability partner, regularly checking for progress and helping celebrate milestones which are reached. Make time for friends who boost morale and inspire development their positivity is contagious.
