New Free Blog For Independent Thinkers - ‘Unintended Consequences’

Thursday 14 October, 2021

We find ourselves at a fulcrum point for democracies around the world with governments taking increasingly authoritarian positions that alienate vast tracts of the voting public whilst influencing media outlets to rewrite reality. Having seen so many liberties undermined in recent years, the new, free, Unintended Consequences blog contributes to the free speech movement & aims to focus a contrarian lens on the issues of the day. It’s thought provoking but bite sized for busy people.

Authored by a (grumpy) middle aged British man; Simon Dixon Davies, the new ‘Unintended Consequences’ free blog dissects and unpacks global topics with a particular focus on the often unintended outcomes of our actions, policies, rules & behaviours. Always controversial, sometimes revolutionary & occasionally amusing; the blog takes a side swipe at conventional wisdom & promotes a healthy dose of cynicism to help traverse a world where fact & fiction are often indistinguishable.

There’s something for everyone; with content covering topics as diverse as Professional Tennis, National Healthcare, Scottish Independence, Electric Cars & Afghanistan! In fact www.simondixondavies.co.uk has a library of over 25 articles all with a maximum 5 minute read time.

Simon welcomes comments, likes & subscribers.
