

New Powder Supplement Range Eliminates Difficulties Swallowing Tablets

Tuesday 15 May, 2018

According to the Health Food Manufacturer's Association almost two thirds of Brits take some form of vitamin or supplement each year. At the same time, however, a surprising number of us are unable to swallow tablets, so are missing out on all the potential health benefits of supplementation. With this in mind Simply Supplements has launched a brand new supplement range in powder form.

SimplyGo is a range of supplements that either come in a loose powder form, or in individually-sized powder sachets. Simply tip a scoop or sachet of powder into a glass of water, stir and enjoy. For health fanatics they can also be added to juices or shakes.

To make taking your chosen supplement even more enjoyable this new range comes in an assortment of delicious flavours from mango and orange to chocolate and vanilla.

"At Simply Supplements we believe that responding to our customer's needs is central to our success. Many of our customers have told us that they find swallowing capsules or tablets difficult, so we're thrilled to announce the launch of SimplyGo." says nutritionist Matt Durkin MSc who has been developing the range. "Combining both loose powders with a range of delicious flavours means that meeting your nutritional needs has never been easier or tastier".

The SimplyGo range includes many old favorites together with some rather more novel options. The current line-up includes SimplyGo Slim+, which includes glucomannan to support weight loss on a calorie controlled diet, and SimplyGo Joints with glucosamine, turmeric and chondroitin.
