New Tinnitus Support Group forms in Oxford

10 May 2016 A new group to support local people with tinnitus is being formed in Oxford. The first meeting will take place on Saturday 18th June 2016, 3pm at St. Andrew's Church, St. Andrew's Road, Old Headington, Oxford, OX3 9DL.

Dave Carr, BTA Volunteering and Engagement Manager comments: "Being among people who have the problem, listening to their experiences and how they have managed to handle things, is a tremendous help for the individual. I witness this first hand when attending group meetings. It is amazing seeing the difference it makes to people, especially those who have recently been diagnosed."

Tinnitus is defined as the experience of sounds with no external source, most commonly ringing or buzzing, but sometimes experienced as whooshing, clicking or even music. It is experienced by around 1 in 10 adults. Many people aren't troubled by sounds they hear, but for around 10%, the condition has a significant impact on their quality of life, often linked to stress, anxiety or sometimes depression.

Dave adds: "Tinnitus can be an isolating condition, with friends and family struggling to understand how it feels to adapt to the presence of loud or persistent noises. Some people choose to bring a partner or family member to the meetings, which can often help both parties understand more about the condition and the experiences or behaviours it can bring."

Group volunteer Julie recalls: "I got tinnitus in November 2004. I didn't know that was the name for the ringing in my ears until some months later when I went to the doctor. I had been through an extremely stressful time at my teaching job and felt that I had caused the tinnitus. Although I found the British Tinnitus Association on the internet and made several calls to the helpline, I hung up before anyone could answer. I didn't want to accept that I had a 'condition'. Then in June 2013, I rang the BTA again and waited until someone answered. The volunteer I spoke to was absolutely brilliant. By the end of the call I felt I could act. He told me about the hearing clinic at the John Radcliffe and advised me to get my doctor to refer me to the JR. I did not know that such a clinic existed and that I could get help on the NHS. The tinnitus has not gone but I feel more supported and would encourage anyone with tinnitus to get support. There is support and information available and it does help."

Editors Notes

The British Tinnitus Association (BTA) is an independent charity which supports thousands of people who experience tinnitus and advises medical professionals from across the world.

The BTA is the primary source of support and information for people with tinnitus in the UK, facilitating an improved quality of life.

They aim to encourage prevention through its educational programme and to seek effective treatment for tinnitus through a medical research programme.

The support the BTA offers to 335,000 people per year who are affected by tinnitus is reliant upon the generous donations of their supporters and fundraisers. They receive no government support and need to raise half a million pounds each year to continue their UK wide support. Donations can be made via www.justgiving.com/BTA

Not an illness or disease, tinnitus is a term that describes the sensation of hearing a noise in the absence of an external sound. The noise can have virtually any quality. Ringing, whistling, and buzzing are common, but more complex sounds may also be reported. Troublesome tinnitus can be very distressing for the affected individual, and issues may arise with sleep, concentration and mood.
