- NTT DATA recognized as a Leader in both the Magic Quadrant for Managed Network Services and in the Magic Quadrant for Network Services, Global*

TOKYO – November 16, 2023 – NTT DATA., a leader in global technology services, has been named a Leader in the 2023 Gartner Magic Quadrant Managed Network Services, for its "Completeness of Vision" and "Ability to Execute" among 17 managed network service providers. NTT DATA is also a Leader in the 2023 Gartner Magic Quadrant Network Services, Global, for the 10th consecutive year. It is the first time NTT DATA has been recognized as a Leader in both the Magic Quadrant reports*.

Rising traffic levels, copious volumes of devices, and AI data systems have given organizations an even stronger appreciation of existing networks, cementing their role as a vital contributor to a business's success. NTT has enabled today's computing applications to achieve business goals.

"Leaders execute well against their current vision and are well positioned for tomorrow," said Amit Dhingra, Executive VP, Enterprise Network Services at NTT Ltd. "We believe the recognition from Gartner further validates our vision and underscores our commitment to delivering exceptional network technology solutions, from consulting and design to implementation and management."

For enterprises to focus on operational excellence and make continuous improvements that support organizational competitiveness and agility, it's critical to leverage leading-edge and effective managed services. NTT's next-generation AI enabled managed services platform (SPEKTRA) provides enterprises with in-depth operational metric visibility, empowering clients to optimize network performance effortlessly.

Known for its exceptional client service and support, NTT's Managed Network Services include a standard set of service level commitments. The company's recognized industry expertise, strategic vendor partnerships, skilled people, automated processes, and management tools, deliver consistent service levels and near real-time, data-driven management insight to its customers, leading to consistently high levels of satisfaction.
