A positive mental attitude (PMA) is often what separates the successful from the unsuccessful. Everyone experiences set backs and bumps in the road, however successful entrepreneurs must learn to have a positive mental attitude to overcome failures says Omnilotus, direct marketing specialists based in London. Positivity is vital in business, as tough times can be a regular occurrence and without positivity it's hard to plow through. A person with a positive outlook views situations differently and has a 'glass half full' mentality. Omnilotus have outlined six tips on how to create a positive mental attitude.

1. Think Positive

Thinking positive is probably the most important factor in achieving a positive mental attitude as everything starts in the mind. "Keep telling yourself you can do it then it increases chances of accomplishing goals," says Omnilotus. Learning this habit will bring someone success in both their business and personal life.

2. Focus on the future

Too many people dwell on the past and it is blocking the vision of the future. Rather than focusing on past failures or bad experiences, it is important for someone to visualise the future they want. This can be done by writing down goals, giving a visual representation of something to work towards.

3. Embrace life

Those who possess a positive mental attitude embrace life in all its forms, even in times of failures and setbacks. The key to achieving a positive mental attitude is to stop worrying about trivial matters and focus on what really matters.

Don't expect and wait for things to change, make the choice to take action to make the changes.

4. Spend time with positive people

The saying, 'we are who we surround ourselves with' applies here. Stay away from negative people and spend time with positive people, this helps someone to stay positive. This habit is simple but crucial to achieve a positive mental attitude. Negative people can drain energy and drive. People must learn to surround themselves with people who are like-minded and have similar goals.

5. Control your reactions

Individuals are responsible for creating their own reality through their thoughts and beliefs. Everyone goes through testing times, often by circumstances out with their control, but one thing they do have control over is their reaction to those situations. By choosing to react positively in the face of adversity, that is the very definition of PMA.

6. Stay cool

Don't let insignificant problems such as being stuck in a traffic jam or someone cutting a queue, cause stress. Getting uptight by other people's actions has a negative affect.
