About Phoenix Events: <http://www.phoenixeventmarketing.co.uk/about-us/>

As a fast growing outsourced sales and event marketing firm, Phoenix Event Marketing work predominantly with young professionals and graduates. The reason for this is down to the firm's exciting business development opportunities and the constant support and mentoring they are able to offer these ambitious individuals. Being an event marketing firm, Phoenix Event Marketing offer brands innovative and engaging ways to connect with their consumers through pop up events and promotions. Through these eye catching pop up events, the firm meet with their clients' consumer directly and provide them the rare chance to get up close and personal to a brand and interact with a brand representative one-on-one. This delivers a higher quality of customer service and allows the firm to personalise each customer's experience which increases their clients' brand loyalty and generates a consistently high revenue. Due to the creative, hands on nature of the work they do, Phoenix Event Marketing have found the sales and event marketing industry to be the ideal environment for young people looking to gain real world business experience and learn new skills. This is why, alongside their daily marketing tasks, the firm's young professionals are given the opportunity to take part in optional skills workshops, leadership seminars and national networking events.

In a recent seminar, organised to inspire these young professionals and help them reach their individual goals, Phoenix Event Marketing looked at the accomplishments of businessman, author and philanthropist Tony Robbins. The firm have long been adamant that Robbins is a fantastic role model for young professionals, especially those eager to rise through the ranks and carve out a future as an entrepreneur. As well as driving his own success, Robbins has made a name for himself as a mentor and investor, helping others to become some of the world's most powerful, wealthy and successful people. Phoenix Event Marketing recently shared the best lessons from his experiences in business with their young workforce.

Add value and help those around you

Whilst Robbins encourages people to shoot for the stars, he also explains that to get there, people need to accomplish smaller things first and that they can do this by helping others. By finding their passion and talent and then looking for ways they can use it to help others can give professionals the edge – helping them to build a strong network and build a great reputation within their industry. "From our own experiences, we've recognised that we all have something to bring to the table. By sharing these skills and collaborating with others will allow professionals to move forward faster, whilst also creating a stronger business community," stated a spokesperson for Phoenix Event Marketing.

Always be hungry

Robbins believes that the single most important ingredient for success is hunger and that without this, a professional will never unleash their full potential. Successful people are hungry to grow, hungry to contribute and hungry to learn. This drives them to keep on going even when the world around them seems to be throwing obstacles in their path. "This is an important lesson within our industry," states Phoenix Events. "It's competitive and accomplishments are self-driven. There is so much opportunity and potential in the industry but people must have the hunger to go out and make the most of them, that's why we do all we can to inspire young professionals to work hard and take their own initiative."
