

Powerful alliance assisting Capital Markets with cloud migration and unlocking the potential of data

Wednesday 5 August, 2020

RoZetta Technology and the GreenBirch Group announce an exciting collaboration to service the exploding demand for data science, analytics, and managed data services.

Capital Markets firms are faced with migration decisions as cloud technologies emerge and firms seek to optimise their cost base in parallel with building competitive advantage. The GreenBirch Group and RoZetta Technology are proven experts with knowledge, experience and technical depth required to support complex decisions and delivery real business outcomes.

Advances in data processing technology, firms can now gain deeper insights from a broader set of data at a significantly lower cost. In a highly competitive capital markets space 4 themes are currently front of mind as firms seek to economically and effectively leverage data and take a step away from on-premise constraints.

- New world data storage creates competitive advantage - The technical need to store data on-premise in order to analyse has gone away with public cloud infrastructure easily accessible, scalable and cost-effective.
- New data driving Alpha discovery - The emergence of new data sources presents a significant opportunity to find Alpha and deliver market insights.
- Lower cost, increase speed to market - Belief that new technologies allow for reduction in total cost of ownership and improved value from data assets is driving cloud migration consideration.
- Partnering with new skills key for successful migration to new world - Building an effective transition plan and identifying the right technologies is complex and raises questions relating to building in-house or leverage other models - where to begin.

With the emergence of scalable, flexible technologies and accessible data and analytic managed platforms the industry has the opportunity to reverse the effort to value ratio. In the past firms spent 80% of their effort ensuring data was accessible, usable and had tools available to undertake analysis. Today presents potential to turn this on its head and deliver 80% of effort towards value realising analytics and revenue generation.

London-based GreenBirch Group are experts in supporting firms identify, plan and execute practical transitions to realise these benefits. To effectively leapfrog technical debt and open opportunities to utilise scalable quality data for analytics is where GreenBirch Group together with RoZetta Technology make a powerful combination.

Working with GreenBirch, firms can build a clear picture of the right technology and business case that will allow them to move forward. Leveraging solutions by RoZetta Technology provides a technology flexible solution. Embedded with data science analytics their cloud based platform presents a tailored, scalable and cost-effective option with relatively low barriers to adoption.
