

PRESS RELEASE: EU Referendum: Young Cardiffian Combats “Mainstream Misinformation”, With NATO Interviews, And More

Monday 20 June, 2016

EU Referendum: Independent, exclusive interviews by young Cardiffian with European leaders to counter “mainstream misinformation”, aid young people.

A young Brit who lived in Belgium for 19 years and now resides in Cardiff is leading a major project to inform and engage other young people about the EU and the referendum this Thursday in an impartial way.

Arthur Huxham, writing for theSprout.co.uk – Cardiff’s youth information website and magazine for young people – has been to Brussels, interviewed senior NATO staff, the Chair of the British Chambers of Commerce in Belgium, ex-BBC journalist Mark Laity, the Chair of the Welsh Society in Brussels, plus European students in Cardiff, and more.

This comes as a poll last week from market research firm Ipsos MORI showed that “the UK is massively misinformed on the EU”, including on immigration and the EU’s financial costs and benefits, and as fifteen academics from Cardiff and Swansea universities have penned an open letter attacking EU Referendum “falsehoods”.

Another young Cardiffian, Adam, says, “With all the sensationalism in the mainstream press and from political parties, it’s a relief to get the facts clearly to know how to make an informed decision on the 23rd. I am really thankful to theSprout writer, who, as a young person, doesn’t have an agenda besides the truth.”

In addition to over a dozen independent articles, Arthur has also just published an exclusive 40-minute documentary called
